Voluntary Testimonials

—GIVEN TO—

DR. WOH,
The Eminent Chinese Physician.

No Opium or Poisonous Drugs are used in my Practice.

Excess and Medicines of Absolute Purity only used on hand and for sale.

Dr. Woh's life work has been from early youth one of persistent and untiring observation, study and investigation, as fully as lay in his power to perfect himself in all branches of the art of healing human sickness and disease. Born in China, of influential parents, of a family whose ancestors have been for generations deservedly renowned as leading physicians, Dr. Woh naturally followed in the footsteps of his fathers. In China he has practiced his profession for several years, being at one time a physician in the Imperial Hospital, and in America for a long time. His great number of patients, his wonderful and many cures, and the great list of letters from grateful and thankful patrons now prove him to be a remarkable and successful healer of sickness and all diseases.

DR. WOH:
I have doctored with the best physicians of San Francisco for my heart disease, but received no benefit. Thirty days ago I was recommended to you and began your treatment before this I was twice completely prostrated in the public streets, but today I am a well man and I thank you alone for my recovery. Respectfully,
J. G. SIMPSON,
January 10, 1892.

In Cleveland, O., many months ago I caught a severe cold which settled on my lungs, terminating in asthma. The doctors said there was no hope of my recovery, but that a change to California might prolong my life. February 1st I came to San Bernardino and doctored with three physicians, but no relief. Finally Dr. Woh was recommended to me by a friend. I took his medicines and followed his directions and today I am perfectly well.
MISS GRACE M. FIELD,
Oct. 30, 1891.

Dr. Woh has hundreds of similar testimonials, but space alone prevents further publication of them here.
Dr. Woh is the oldest and best-known Chinese Physician in Southern California. His many cures have been remarkable, involving Fevers, Tremors, Tumors and every form of disease.

"No baking powder is gaining public favor so rapidly as Cleveland's."

One reason is people like to know what they are eating, and the composition of Cleveland's baking powder is given on every label.

So many baking powders containing ammonia or alum are widely advertised as "absolutely pure," the best way is to refuse any brand the composition of which is concealed.

AT THE CHURCHES.

The Relation of the Old or Jewish Covenant.

Successful Revival Meetings During the Past Week.

The Necessity of Discipline in Christian Life.

Interesting Sunday Sermons at the First Baptist, St. John's Episcopal, Temple Street Christian, First Methodist and Immanuel Presbyterian.

Temple Street Christian Church was as usual well filled yesterday both morning and evening. The pastor, Rev. A. C. Smith, preached in the morning upon "The Relation of the Old or Jewish Covenant and the New or Christian Covenant." The discourse was a clear, logical, doctrinal sermon.

The subject of the evening discourse was "Alexander Campbell," the last of the four great religious reformers in history, and his plea. He said in substance: "Truth moves in tidal waves and on their crests revolutions in the political world are borne. Martin Luther in religious reformation was the exponent of freedom of thought and action; John Calvin was the exponent of God's sovereignty; and John Wesley of personal holiness and systematic, organized work, while that of Alexander Campbell was unity in Christendom on the basis of the Bible and the Bible only. His plea was for primitive Christianity, Apostolic Christianity, to get away from sectarianism, away from the discordant elements of modernism, which produces weakness in the church; breeds skepticism, is the prop of religious strife, impedes missionary progress and is a curse to Christianity, has God's disapproval and is Satan's tool, teaching that the church is a mere organization, and that the Bible is itself a sin; it was rebuked by the Apostles; Christ organized but one church. Christian union can only be effected upon the Bible and the Bible alone as a basis; all religious ordinances must be practiced according to the Bible; teaching that the church is a mere organization, and that the Bible is itself a sin; it was rebuked by the Apostles; Christ organized but one church. an express train rushing by at this early hour.

Monrovia, a bright child of the boom, looked out with an attractive and prosperous air from its commanding hillside location. By the time that Asuna was reached it was full daylight and the lamps were extinguished. Here a brief stop was made and a large bundle of papers thrown out. Quite a crowd had gathered on the platform to see the Times Flyer come in. The enthusiasm was spontaneous and catching. The shouts of those on the platform were returned with interest from the train. The artist descended to the platform to stretch his legs, which are long, and to fix the scene in his memory, which is short. The editorial writer, who has an orange orchard near by, pointed out the many relics of December's windstorm, which were all too numerous and apparent. The telegraph editor wanted to know whether all those boulders were there because it was a town, or whether the townsite had been selected on account of the presence of the boulders. He was told that Mr. Slanson had said when he started Asuna, namely, that if the location was good and the townsite was good, he'd like to know what it was good for.

Asuna is in the heart of boomland, that was. It was around here, five years ago, that the competition for "business lots" was fiercest and the shout of the auctioneer was heard abroad in the land like the voice of one crying in the wilderness, warning all to flee from the wrath to come upon those who should be found without an equity in at least one twenty-five foot sand-lot when the borders of lamborghini Eastlands should arrive in the following winter. But alas and alack! the horses didn't come, and the sand-lots are still there—or as much of them as were not blown away last December. Recollections, pleasant and otherwise—mostly otherwise—were brought to the large, substantial town with its scores of elegant villas in spacious grounds, and its dozens of solid brick blocks, with its thousands of acres of surrounding orchards, was laid out but a little over five years ago, or to be precise, in October, 1886. Yet such is the case, Redlands crowns the eastern end of the San Bernardino Valley as party who did not gaze long and earnestly on that beautiful scene.

Still further climbing and East Highland is passed. Away to the right stretches the great semicircle of hills that hedge in this elevated mountain valley, around which the kite-shaped tract extends. Off on yonder bench is Redlands, which the train will shortly pass. Mentone is now reached, the most elevated point on the track, 1,600 feet above sea level and the most distant point touched on the trip. The air here is decidedly crisp and cool. The soil around is light, dry and porous, largely formed of decomposed granite, although the great beds of boulders that were noticeable near Highland are missing. When those boulders were passed the telegraph editor, proud of his newly-acquired knowledge, asked if it was a townsite.

Mentone is a young settlement, but evidences of activity and growth are visible on every side. Young orange orchards are seen at frequent intervals all the way from San Bernardino. This elevated valley is largely composed of choice orange land, which is now in greenland. Redlands, the largest town on the eastern loop, is next reached. Here quite a number of citizens had assembled to see the Times Flyer come in and get their Los Angeles papers at 8:30, a gain of nearly four hours over the regular time. The enterprising agent received two large bundles and "Here's your morning Times!" soon broke the Sunday morning stillness of Redlands.

Redlands was a great surprise to those members of the party who saw it for the first time, or who had not been there for a couple of years. It is, in many respects, the most phenomenal of the numerous phenomenal towns of Southern California. It is scarcely possible for the beholder to believe that this large, substantial town with its scores of elegant villas in spacious grounds, and its dozens of solid brick blocks, with its thousands of acres of surrounding orchards, was laid out but a little over five years ago, or to be precise, in October, 1886. Yet such is the case, Redlands crowns the eastern end of the San Bernardino Valley as only exist as a remembrance, or perhaps in the shape of a big building that was a hotel.

Glendora, San Dimas and Lodi, which the train rapidly passes, were all to have been centers of dense population, but it was on the other side of the useful fruit trees that there instead of useless brick blocks. The great hotel building at the last named place—now a Dunkard college—would be an accession to Los Angeles.

At San Dimas the summit is passed and the Flyer makes a sharp descent to the San José or Pomona Valley. At North Pomona a big bundle of papers is given to the expectant carrier for transportation to the headquarters of Murchison and prohibition. There is the usual gathering at the depot, the usual cheers and encouraging remarks on the enterprise of the journal of Southern California. The same is the case at North Ontario, where another big bundle is dropped. Away in the distance to the north the China beet-sugar factory is visible, suggesting some unfavorable remarks on the Democratic statesmanship that would abolish the sugar bounty and thus discourage a promising young industry. Now a quick rush through orange and lemon groves that show all too many evidences of a recent tussle, with Jack Frost, and San Bernardino is reached at 7:24, just a minute ahead of time.

Here at the station was by far the biggest crowd yet seen. The Flyer received an ovation and the bystanders eagerly produced their nickels for the poverty of a Los Angeles paper before breakfast. The agent took a big bundle of extras, but they did not half suffice, and when the train returned he had to call for more.

A halt of about twenty minutes was made here, and an excellent breakfast partaken of at the station. The editorial writer doing the honors on behalf of the Times. Bowker, of the business office, declared that the excitement of the trip had taken away his appetite, so he remained, on board the train to see that nobody should steal the mullin sign for a souvenir of the occasion.

Again the Flyer was off, this time to make the circuit of the smaller loop of the kite-shaped track. It was now for a time up grade and the progress was not quite so fast. As the train swept around the great arrowhead on the mountain, which gives its designation to the springs of that name, came into view. A little further on is the State insane asylum, a massive, prison-like building, now nearing completion, the location of which caused so much bad blood and led the late Arthur Kearney of the Courier to indite some of the most fearful and wonderful appeals to the "San Bernardinoans" that mortal brain ever conceived outside of an institution like that of which he wrote. The sight of the asylum appeared to remind the artist—the funny man—of something familiar, for he commenced to personate a yelling maniac, winding up by pulling the Asabum-like locks of the telegraph editor, who sat with his back to him counting the telegraph poles. Peace was only restored by a promise to draw the Associated Press manipulator's picture on the way home; all of which led the special writer and the book-keeper to exchange in German their private views on the peculiar characteristics of artists in general and of funny artists in particular.

The train climbed, passing Highland, appropriately named. Here a simultaneous cry from several members of the party called attention to a wonderful scene that was visible on the left. There was a great rift in the long bank of clouds that hung along the mountain sides, near the foot of which the train was speeding, and through that rift, like a scene thrown on a sheet by a magic lantern, was a towering mountain—Mount San Bernardino—on the sides of which the snowfields shone with the resplendency of burnished steel. It was a sight as grand as it was strange, like the vision of Benah Land, which, cheered on by pilgrims on their weary journey to the promised land. Actually, about twelve miles distant, the mountain did not appear more than a mile at the outside, and the chill air which blew from the fields of snow heightened the impression of close proximity. The Initial Trip and the Men Who Were in Charge.

As has been heretofore stated, the initial trip of the Times Flyer was an unqualified success. The journey was made from "end to end" on exact schedule time, and there was not the slightest hitch anywhere on the line, a fact which speaks well for the thorough organization and system which prevails in the Santa Fe management. the idea of putting on a special early train was first broached to General Manager Wade by THE TIMES, he at once realized the importance of the enterprise in the development of the country, and entered fully into the spirit of the project. Terms were agreed upon, details arranged, the necessary contracts drawn, and the Times Flyer became an assured fact.

At the first street depot yesterday morning, there were quite a number of the railroad people on hand to give the Flyer a proper send-off. Among them were Trainmaster L. L. Hibbard, who made the trip with THE TIMES party; Capt. Harry Isaacs, the division baggage agent; Mr. Woodman and others. The train was in charge of Conductor W. A. Dunn, one of the oldest and most reliable men on the road, who has had large experience in the East, where newspaper trains are a regular thing, and fully realized the importance of the new departure in Southern California. Mr. Dunn did everything in his power to make the trip a pleasant and successful one.

Fred Reynolds, another old employe, was in charge of the engine, which had been thoroughly overhauled by Master Mechanic Prescott for the occasion. Mr. Prescott was picked up at Redlands, and, with his chief clerk, Harry Hillier, made the return trip to "see how the machine behaved herself." Reynolds stated before the start that he would make the trip on schedule time and carried out this promise to the letter, as there was hardly a full minute's difference between the schedule on the entire run. Fireman Leutz handled the shovel during the trip.

Baggage-master H. Smith and Brakeman Charley Garner, who handled the packages of papers like old-time mail clerks, made up the balance of the crew.

It is only justice to state that every man on the train exerted himself to the utmost to make the journey a pleasant one, all of which was duly appreciated by those on board.

FOSTER'S FORECASTS.

The Next Storm Due on the Coast—Local Probabilities.

Storms 3500 Miles Apart—Mistakes Concealed Concerning the Electro-meteorology, by Near-ling Perfection.

[COPYRIGHTED, 1892, BY W. T. FOSTER.]

St. Joseph (Mo.), Feb. 11.—My last letter gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from the 19th to the 16th, and the next will be due to reach the Pacific Coast about the 16th, cross the western mountains by the close of the 17th, the great central valleys from the 18th to the 20th, and the Eastern States about the 21st. This storm will be most severe on the Pacific Coast about the same time the storm preceding it is at its greatest force on the Atlantic coast, which will be not far from the 16th.

The cool wave following this storm, with clearing weather, will cross the western mountains about the 19th, the great central valleys about the 21st, and the Eastern States about the 23d. Several papers are copying my weather forecasts without permission, and in doing so they are liable to pay damages in a United States court. My weather forecasts are copyrighted, and no paper has a right to use them without paying for them. I do not want to that class of individuals who belong to that class of individuals who want to see their names in print for the fun of it. My knowledge of electro-meteorology is my capital, and the publication of my writings is purely a matter of business. I hope that hereafter no paper will copy my forecasts from papers that pay for them, for in order to protect my own interests it will be necessary for me to see that the copyright laws are enforced.

ELECTRO-METEOROLOGY.

I am not yet able to avoid errors in my weather forecasts. But I very seldom err as to the dates on which the storm centers and cool waves cross the continent. My mistakes are confined principally to the force and latitude of these disturbances. Even in these particulars a very large per cent. of the forecasts are verified.

I have no disposition to evade the responsibility of my mistakes, but rather prefer to frankly state wherein the principal difficulties lie. The responsibilities of these mistakes must rest upon myself and not on the system, for if the system of electro-meteorology was thoroughly understood there would be no errors in weather forecasts. The fault lies with man and not with the laws of nature.

As I have repeatedly stated, there are four storm waves passing around the earth from west to east, between 30° and 60° of north latitude, making 45° of north latitude an average center of their paths around the earth.

The average distance of these storm waves apart—from west to east—is about 3500 miles. The high barometer—that which gives us the cool wave and clearing weather—follows about 1750 miles behind the low barometer, and these high and low barometers are all strung around the earth like a string of beads, and all moving eastward.

We have made success in finding the dates on which these high or low barometers, or storm waves, will pass any given meridian of longitude. That part of the system is a decided success. It makes a very great difference in the weather as to whether a storm center passes south or north of a locality, and in locating the latitude of a storm center mistakes are sometimes made. The storm wave may be exactly on time as predicted, but if it goes by on the south side the weather will follow, while if it goes by on the north side the weather will follow. A few errors are unavoidable at this time in locating the latitude of the storm waves.

The most difficult matter to calculate is the force of the storm. This is very important, for the force of the storm has much to do with the character of the weather.

The electrical influences of the sun, moon and planets affect every part of the earth at the same moment, but these influences will manifest themselves in one or all of the four storm waves that are moving around the earth at about 3500 miles apart. The difficulty lies in determining which of these four storm waves will be most affected, and herein is where most of our errors are committed.

It is not difficult to understand that the planetary influences are conveyed to the storm centers through the earth's electric currents, and if we fully understood the laws that govern the magnetic forces of the solar system, we would make no mistakes in forecasting the location and force of the storm centers and their influences on the weather.

In the latter part of January I had calculated the electrical influences would largely increase the force of the storms due to cross the continent from the 25th to 29th of January. The result, however, was that the storm wave preceding it received almost the full force of the electrical influences, causing a great storm in Western Europe at the time we expected a great storm here.

An intelligent investigation will satisfy any reasonable mind that we are very near to one of the greatest discoveries of modern times. We know the dates on which the storm waves will cross the continent; we know, approximately, how to calculate the latitude of these storm waves, we know the dates on which these storm waves will have the greatest and least force, and the greatest force of the storm waves is to know which of the four storm waves will be most affected by the planetary influences.

Two-thirds of the time I can succeed in rightly determining this difficult problem, but the other third is what stands in the way of complete success. I know where to look to find the key to this difficult part of the weather problem, and have clearly indicated this to my readers. I expect to discover that key and then avoid errors.

If I make one mistake out of ten forecasts a certain class of critics will ridicule my work. Let them ridicule. I know that the system of electro-meteorology has the only true basis, and that time, I hope a comparatively short time, will vindicate it.

But the readers of my work must not now expect infallible forecasts, for the system is not yet perfect. They should always remember that my own time and money, aided by fifty daily newspapers, are working out this great problem without assistance from the General Government.

English Diplomacy on Top in the Egyptian Complication.

Native Sudanese Tribes Fighting Around Khartoum—The Outlook in Brazil Becoming More Hopeful for Peace and Prosperity.

By Telegram to the Times.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The rise in the price of beef, caused by the tariff, has led to a large demand for horseflesh in Paris. According to the report of the police prefect the horses and mules slaughtered represent one-third of the whole quantity of meat consumed. Fillet of horse or donkey is retailed at 10 sous per pound, steak at 7 sous and the inferior parts at 2. Worn-out animals are rising in value and being bought up everywhere within a radius of 800 miles of Paris.

Have importers of American pork obtained an abrogation of the order by which consignments of pork could not be landed until the importer presented a certificate from the United States inspector. Such pork can now be landed at the convenience of importers. The Havre Chamber of Commerce now asks for the rescinding of the order by which meat found unfit for use is to be destroyed. The chamber probably is desirous to hold such meat until American exporters decide to have it returned.

ENGLISH DIPLOMACY WINS.

An Important Point Gained as to the Khedive's Investiture.

PARIS, Feb. 14.—[By Cable and Associated Press.] The secretary of the British embassy in Constantinople had an audience with the Sultan yesterday, and it is semi-officially announced today that the Sultan has been prepared, and that it is worded in the exact terms of the firm investing the late Khedive, Tewfik Pasha. This is regarded as a signal success for English diplomacy, as it defeats the attempts to induce the Sultan to invest in the firm instructions to the Khedive reflecting upon English supremacy in Egypt. The Sultan prepared to adhere to the old form in order not to embarrass the Khedive.

The ceremony of investiture will take place in Cairo in accordance with the desire of England and with the concurrence of the Khedive.

The government has no financial difficulty to contend with, and has obtained a vote of thanks from Congress.

The Belgienland brought 235 and the Russia 540 immigrants, among whom are people from localities near if not contiguous to the places whence came the typhus-infected Russian Jews who have wrought such consternation among the health officers. The City of Berlin, the Belgienland and the Russia were examined each individual on the City of Berlin separately, but found no indication of infection.

A MISSING GIRL.

A California Young Lady Disappears in New York City.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—[By the Associated Press.] Maud Helman of San Francisco is a runaway daughter. She is 18 years old. Last November she secured from her mother $1750 and two days later disappeared. She came to this city, stopped a few days with a relative and then disappeared again.

Her last disappearance was December 2, and she has not been seen since by her friends, though her sister, Mrs. M. P. Dolan, of 323 East Forty-third street has made diligent search for her. Miss Helman is tall, with brown hair and a very erect carriage. She is not handsome, but is quite attractive. One cause of her disappearance was the efforts of her mother to induce her to become a Catholic. She was placed in a Catholic institution, but fled from there. Afterward being given an interest in some real estate, she demanded her share of her mother, who gave her the above sum. She purchased a wardrobe and came to this city.

The sister followed her, but Maud heard of it and again disappeared from the place where she was staying. She was traced to the Children's Aid Society, where she remained a short time. Her mother went on from San Francisco to join in the search.

THE GREAT RUG SALE.

Many Prominent People Among the Many.

The auction sale of the Costikyan collection of Oriental rugs, etc., which has been going on at No. 218 South Broadway (Potomac Block), during the last week, attracted a great many people.

Prominent among the purchasers during the week were noticed: Mrs. O. W. Childs, Mrs. Plater, Mrs. Pridham, Mrs. E. H. Owen, Mrs. Alden, Miss Kimball, Miss Mills, Mrs. D. C. Cook, Mrs. Bowman, Mrs. B. M. Jewett, Mrs. Albert Foster, Mrs. Prof. Lowe, Mrs. Gilbert of St. Paul, Mrs. T. A. Lewis, Mrs. W. Outwater, Mrs. Mossin, J. E. McMahon, Mrs. McAllister, Mrs. J. H. McLeod, T. T. Winger, Mrs. M. Hughes, E. K. Foster, Mrs. Henderson, Mrs. D. Tolhurst, C. B. Baker, Mrs. S. C. Hubbard, Mrs. Blecker, Mrs. Walters, Mrs. H. G. Stephens and many others.

To the reporter Mr. Costikyan said: "Saturday was our busiest day, and we sold a very large number of rugs. The prices were exceedingly low, but it gave me great pleasure to notice that every one of the purchasers were very much pleased with their purchases, as well as with the fair treatment they received at our hands. Upon their request I decided to continue the sale today also, when everybody will be enabled to select the rugs they want, and we will put them up and sell them the highest price. We have nearly 500 more rugs which we have just unpacked. The sale will begin at 11 a. m. and continue until 5 p. m. The evening sale will be at 8 o'clock."

Mr. Cleveland's Shooting Trip.

(Forest and Stream.)

If there is any individual I envy just now it is Grover Cleveland, for he is now on a hunting trip to the finest private preserve in America for certain kinds of game, and this is the season when it is at its best.

Take the map of Louisiana, and away over to the southwest, beginning at Morgan City—where the Teche has become a mighty river and flows into the sea—follow that poetic stream. At New Iberia you leave Morgan City 125 miles eastward. Looking south of the river, the swarthy, quaint little French town I have named, where you clear the Teche woods line, you will see what at first glance seems to be an uncommonly massive black cloud rising out of the bosom of a great prairie or sea marsh where sky and prairie unite. It looms high above the level sameness of the long line of marsh. It is an extinct volcano, and is Jefferson's Island, the winter seat of Joe Jefferson, the actor. The island is a triangle, and there are 4500 acres of the finest land under the sun on its top, and nearly as much more sea marsh "appertains" thereto, to use the old quaint legal phrase. This cone is almost surrounded by a lake or sea marsh, near water. A short canal of less than a quarter of a mile would connect the two ends of the horseshoe-shaped water, and make "Jefferson Island" in reality. There is a splendid availing of huge live oaks shading the great drive up to the mansion, which is a fine old residence built of brick laid in water lime, so that the entire structure is now as solid as stone.

The largest orange trees in Louisiana are on this place. It was out of the track of the two armies during the war and was not plundered as some of the Teche places were, and the orange trees find something particularly congenial in the soil and in the climate. It was called before Jefferson bought it twenty-five years ago. There are a good many orange trees in Mr. Jefferson's groves that are eighteen inches in diameter three feet from the ground, and one, the patriarch of the grove, is nearly three feet through. It still gives its annual crop as regularly as it did thirty golden years ago.

But the glory of the place is in its fowl life. It is protected by fowl families of Acadian hunters who still use the 36-inch 16-bore muzzle-loader and manage to kill an uncommonly large quantity of game with them, too. These people keep off all other hunters from the water, and Mr. Jefferson leaves the place alone six months of the year, and maintains a good supply of boats and fishing appurtenances. I have never seen such flocks of all kinds of waterfowl as in the winter live on the marsh. The ducks, geese, and high grass of the sea marsh of Jefferson's Island. Wild Canada geese, the Western brant, the snow geese, or white-fronted geese, wild ducks of every species, mallards, black ducks, "Poulters," and a few of large duck—whose scientific name I do not know—blue-bills, the gorgeous-plumed woodcock, shining like an opal in the morning southern sun as he preens himself and majestically accepts the homage of his admirers, his spouse, an occasional flock of swans; these make up the migrating waterfowl. Then, too, there are the native birds; the great white ibis, the wood ibis, green heron, egret, entirely distinct from the egret, the roseate spoonbill, the shy "flamingo"—flamingo, and rarer roseate spoonbill, complete a list of birds which are not often seen as they can be seen in the great sea marsh of the south. The "egrets" of Jefferson Island. Of the two kinds of egrets, the white and the pink, the white are simply uncommon little flocks. They are not cannonaded and scared to death on their feeding grounds by pot-hunters. The few that are killed are shot on the marsh, and are taken between the points of the horseshoe as they fly fearlessly across. Of snipe and woodcock in the cornfields there are an abundance from one point to another.

The fishing is equally fine. Huge 10-pound blue crabs, the "crawfish" of these splendid Louisiana mornings leaping and chasing schools of minnows up into the shallow bays and coves, where duck food is abundant. There are black bass, croppies, white and black perch, channel catfish, "hogheads," and the long, lean, hard-lighting picker. There are other varieties, but neither time nor editorial patience will permit a fuller list. And in the evening, to take a beautiful light sailboat when the wind begins to blow in from the summer sea, whose gentle ripple you can almost hear, and glide under the seven miles stretch of deep water, as the Southern moon rises broad and red, and the easy lake breeze world; with all the mysterious sounds of the night-life of nature softly repeated from coppice, grove or woodland, and then disappearing away in the misty blue, these things are some of the charms of winter life in the furthest South.

You may travel for miles in this section, and from white nor black will you hear one word of English. The soft, bastard French of a century ago is the mother tongue of this region. The few people in the country immediately contiguous to Jefferson's Island have their wealth mainly in cattle and their perfectly-gained, tireless little "Creole" horses. You can buy all you want of them for $20 and $25 each, and a durable, faithful horse—in a warm climate—one could not have.

This is the curious country Mr. Cleveland will test his double 12-bore, 10-pound Scott, or the heavier 10-bore, 10-pound Scott, which he has taken along for noble game, and his bass rod, made according to general Joe Jefferson's own, which is evolved from much experience and knowledge of what it must do. May the communion with nature be a pleasant one. How fortunate he is who understands our old mother!

PASADENA.

An Exciting Runaway on Colorado Street.

A Carriage Containing a Bridal Party Badly Wrecked.

The Happy Couple Escape Uninjured, But One Man Seriously Hurt.

Disastrous Results Prevented by the Prompt Action of an Overland Passenger—Another Church Building—General News.

[Branch office, No. 50 East Colorado street, where news, advertisements and orders for this paper are received.]

W. B. Broadwell of San Bernardino and Miss Sophia Anderson of St. Louis were married yesterday noon at the residence of G. E. Meharry, corner of Colorado street and Los Robles avenue. Rev. J. W. Phelps officiating. It was not a runaway match by any means, but Mr. Meharry being a brother-in-law of the groom, the wedding was held at his residence for convenience.

After the ceremony Mr. Meharry hitched up his horse to the family carriage for the purpose of taking the newly-married couple to the westbound overland train, it being their intention of spending the honeymoon at San Diego. The horse was richly decorated with garlands and streamers, and started to run away. Mr. Meharry guided the animal as best he could and turned into Raymond avenue, hoping to obtain control of the frightened animal before the depot was reached. At the corner of Kansas street the carriage was overturned and the bride and groom were thrown out. The horse was dragged underneath the vehicle to the depot, where the horse was stopped by an overland passenger, who sprang from the train just in time to prevent the horse from dashing into the depot platform among the crowd gathered there. Mr. Meharry was rescued from his perilous position, and was found to be quite badly, but not seriously, hurt. In addition to a cut across the temple and a mangled thumb he was badly bruised about the body.

The bride and groom soon came up and the ladies on the train attended to the former's wants. The groom was richly married couple got on the train and departed amid the cheers of the passengers, not much the worse for their experience. Mr. Meharry was removed to his home, where he was given medical attention.

The runaway created intense excitement, beginning at it did upon the arrival of the overland, which usually attracts a large crowd.

A CITY OF CHURCHES.

The colored people of Pasadena, who have long been without a place of worship of their own, on Saturday made arrangements to reconstruct an old building, recently purchased, which will be placed on North Fair Oaks avenue, along the railroad, and will hereafter be used as their church.

This reminds one that Pasadena can truthfully be called a city of churches. All the leading denominations are represented by elegant buildings, in which large congregations worship, and whose pulpits are occupied by able ministers. In addition to the Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Congregational, Baptist, Universalist, Friends, Christian, Catholic, German Lutheran and German Methodist churches, there are a number of independent societies, all devoted to religious work.

The most devoted Christian can find no fault with the facilities afforded here for the exercise of his religious faith, and all along the line of religious and moral effort there is a seal and energy shown that will meet the expectations of all newcomers.

A circular has been received by a number of fruit-growers and nurserymen, and also by THE TIMES, requesting that people assist in destroying the "Black Knot." No idea is entertained as to what the "Black Knot" is, but it is to be hoped that the populace will hasten to have it destroyed.

A movement is on foot among some of the merchants of the city to get up a petition requesting the banks to dispense with Saturday half-holiday. It is claimed that bank clerks in a city of this size are worked no harder than other classes of clerks and that it works a particular hardship upon many merchants, who sometimes need money to meet wage accounts, and again frequently have sums of money they wish to deposit and cannot do so before noon and after the Saturday half-holiday.

Several Eastern people who are now stopping in Pasadena and are interested here, have been notified at having their names placed on THE TIMES mailing list, believing that the regular edition did not contain the Pasadena news, and that a special edition was sent to this city containing the same, are informed that such is not the case. There has been no such special edition, which contains all the news and is printed as late in the morning as will enable the papers to be forwarded on the outgoing train. In fact, the Southern California news is one of the great features of the paper. Under the new fast-train arrangement one can hardly become so isolated in this city that the Star and the Times fail to receive THE TIMES at the breakfast table, or soon thereafter. Pasadena, who are the leading denizens of the city, can read virtually their home paper every morning.

MRS. OPPENHEIMER'S DRESS.

Selected by a Landlady as Security for Room Rent.

Rather a singular case came under the observation of the authorities Saturday. An officer was sent out to investigate the matter and found that no crime has been committed, but the story is worth telling.

A short time ago Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Oppenheimer were living with a Mrs. Knight, or had rooms in that lady's house, and for a time all seemed to be going smooth, but a change came over Mr. Oppenheimer's spirit, and he and his wife quarreled and separated. What they quarreled about is not known, but it must have been a bitter misunderstanding, for Oppenheimer not only left his wife without money, but he failed to pay the rent of his own room in the house, and this little piece of absent-mindedness on his part is the real cause of all his wife's trouble.

As soon as Mrs. Knight learned of the separation she demanded Oppenheimer's rent from his deserted wife and when that lady refused to pounce upon the landlady took possession of one of Mrs. Oppenheimer's fine dresses and put it under lock and key, declaring that she would hold it until the room rent was paid.

The loss of the dress caused Mrs. Oppenheimer more trouble than did the loss of her husband, so she at once started for the District Attorney's office and wanted a warrant for Mrs. Knight's arrest, but the officers could not see how a case could be made to stick and she was advised to bring a civil action in the matter and recover any dress by that means.

Mrs. Oppenheimer declares that she will get even in some way and further developments are expected.

THE POULTRY SHOW.

A Good Attendance at the Exhibit Yesterday.

Special Attractions for the Remaining Days.—The Fowls Improving in Appearance.—Auction Sale of Eggs This Evening.

The attendance at the poultry show yesterday was very good, comprising a fair representation of city people, with a large contingent from the country. The fact that the exhibit was kept open on Sunday was evidently appreciated, and numbers of those seen in the hall were there for the third and fourth time, bringing their friends with them. As one of the visitors remarked: "The show is too large an affair to be all seen at a single visit; one can find something new to interest at the third or fourth visit." Today there will be several pens of rare specimens of rabbits on exhibition, and in the pet stock exhibit there is also expected some additions to the already large display of pigeons. The fowls on exhibition are improving in appearance daily. A few of those from the East for the first day or two showed slight signs of the effects of their long journey, but they are now at ease in their quarters and are in capital condition—not an indisposed specimen in the showroom. This is remarkable, with a show of over 2000 specimens.

Mr. Scotten, the popular president of the P. A., in company with George O. Brown, Sharp, Butterfield and others, leave for the north today. It is to be regretted that these gentlemen's business interests compel them to their Eastern homes so soon. All speak in the highest terms of the beautiful and rapidly-growing metropolis of the south and the climate completely captivated them.

This evening the thoroughbred eggs, laid during the exhibition, will be auctioned to the highest bidder in one or more settings.

The balance of the score-cards, with the premiums attached, will be on all prize-winners today.

Those attending the show tonight will be well entertained, and from now on till the close of the exhibit the attractions will increase daily. There is a possibility that the show will be continued till Saturday night, as many requests have been made to this effect.

In the Mediterranean class W. W. Thurston of this city, the well-known breeder of brown Leghorns, is in the front rank with his birds. His exhibit comprises twenty or more coops, and as fine a lot of birds is seldom found in any showroom.

The judgments of incubators and brooders were to be awarded Saturday, but owing to the great amount of work to be done before they were awarded, premium ribbons were not placed on the winners until yesterday.

The Prairie State incubator won first on incubator and first on brooder, the Ninety Per Cent. won second on incubator and third on brooder, the Santa Ana incubator Company won third on incubator and second on brooder.

The Los Angeles County Poultry Association has unanimously endorsed H. A. Bridge of Columbus, O., as superintendent for the Poultry Department at the World's Fair in 1893.

CARING FOR THE CHILDREN.

Entertainments Arranged by the Kindergarten Association.

The officers of the Los Angeles Kindergarten Association have not ventured to offer the public their popular "Cradle Songs" this season, lest their charm be lessened by frequent repetition and the generous performers overtaxed. They have substituted what they are persuaded will prove a most attractive series of entertainments, in which George W. Cable, who is the leading favorite with Eastern audiences, is engaged to appear as interpreter of the "piquant characters which he has evolved by keen and sympathetic study of the numberless types of all nationalities with which life in the Louisiana metropolis has surrounded him; and in which series the third evening is given to the story, the novel, the kindly critic and author, Max O'Rell.

The association has not had alone in view the needs of its former charity kindergarten work, but now that the city Board of Education has taken all the little people over 5 years of age into its public kindergartens, the association is broadening its field to include a "day nursery" for the care of the babes who now fester the mother at her daily toil, whether at home or abroad, and must often be neglected because of it; to include, also, the elder sisters, for training under the same roof in the useful and fascinating ways of the so-called "kitchen garden," which does for the usually dull routine of housework, by proper rules and the lively companionship of mates, what the methods of the kindergarten now do for the unattractive routine of ordinary school work.

The association wishes also to include the training of these older girls, after the wise and tender philosophy of Froebel, in the care of these babes, as not only a proper preparation for their own future as mothers, but as skilled nurses for the little people of fortunate families; and to complete their work at this central home by such talks to mothers as will stimulate them in all their home duties.

These things, "new departures" here, are no longer experiments in European and Eastern cities, but have already resulted in almost incalculable good to all concerned. It remains then only to secure the necessary sympathy and funds to get going this most admirable work. And the Kindergarten Association appeals most confidently to a public which has done so generously by them in the past to give its heartiest support to the entertainments now provided at large cost and so strengthen its hands and hearts, and make its proposed work a success beyond all question. The fee for the course is only $2, which is less than the annual fee of the association, but will be most gratefully received as an equivalent, and will bring the giver large and immediate returns in the delights of the fine entertainments provided.

TERRY FAGAN IN JAIL.

A San Francisco Hoodlum Locked Up by the Police.

Yesterday afternoon Detectives Bowler and Benson "nagged" a San Francisco "mac" and all-around tough named Terry Fagan and locked the fellow up in the city prison, where he will remain for some little time unless he is wanted by the San Francisco police, who have been inquiring about him.

Fagan came down here with his woman about ten days ago, and they have been operating here ever since. About a week ago the woman was arrested by the police and tried before Justice Owens on a charge of disturbing the peace, but she managed to evade the law and was released.

As near as can be learned, a short time ago Fagan attacked a man named Ed Stamp in front of a disreputable resort in San Francisco, and after quarrelling a few seconds Fagan drew a knife and stabbed Stamp several times. He was duly arrested, but when the case came up for trial Stamp had been so terrorized by Fagan's pals that he seemed to be afraid to testify, and the case was continued to give the prosecution a chance to hunt up more witnesses.

Fagan was admitted to bail in the sum of $1000 and at once came down here. When arrested a telegram was found on his person signed "Joe," telling him to hurry back to San Francisco, as the case had been "fixed" so that he can pay a fine and escape punishment.

Fagan will be held until the authorities at San Francisco are notified, and if he is wanted he will be sent up, and if not he will be sent to the chain-gang as a vag.
